

Outdoor advertisements and signs: a guide for advertisers

Contents

Advertisement control	3
How the Advertisement Control System Works	4
Regulations for England and Wales	4
Who controls outdoor advertisements?	4
What is an 'advertisement'?	4
Three different groups of outdoor advertisement.....	5
Three areas where special rules apply.....	5
The 'standard conditions'	5
Advertisements Which are Normally Permitted	7
Conditions for display without application	7
Advertisements which are excluded from control.....	7
Classes of advertisement benefiting from deemed consent.....	10
Class 1 : 'functional advertisements' by public bodies	10
Class 2: miscellaneous advertisements on any premises.....	11
Class 3: Temporary Advertisements	13
Class 4: illuminated advertisements	16
Class 5: advertisements on business premises	17
Class 6: advertisements on forecourts of business premises.....	19
Class 7: flag advertisements	19
Class 8: poster-hoardings around temporary construction sites.....	20
	21
Class 9: four-sheet posterpanels displayed on purpose-designed highway structures	21
Class 10: properly authorised signs for approved Neighbourhood Watch and similar schemes.....	22
Class 11: directional advertisements	22

Class 12: advertisements displayed inside buildings	23
Class 13: sites used for displaying advertisements on 1 April 1974	23
Class 14: advertisements displayed after the expiry of express consent	23
Advertisements Which Need Specific Permission, and How to Obtain it.....	24
Express consent.....	24
How to obtain advertisement consent	24
How your application for consent is decided	24
What do 'amenity' and 'public safety' mean?	24
What happens after the authority's decision?	25
What happens if the planning authority refuse consent?	26
How and when you can appeal to the Secretary of State	26
Illegal advertisements.....	27
Appendix: Special Controls.....	28
Power to take away the benefit of deemed consent.....	28
Power to take 'discontinuance action'.....	28
What is an Area of Special Control of Advertisements?.....	28

Advertisement control

This booklet, prepared by the Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions and the Welsh Assembly for Wales, aims to explain to everyone who wants to display an outdoor advertisement how the system of advertisement control works in England and Wales.

Because you may find the system quite complicated at first, the booklet is arranged in separate sections and there are numerous illustrations which may show you how the system affects the type of advertisement you want to display.

The main sections in the booklet explain:

- How the advertisement control system works
- What advertisements are normally permitted
- What advertisements need specific permission and how to obtain it
- How planning authorities may control the display of advertisements in some special cases is explained in the Appendix.

How the Advertisement Control System Works

Regulations for England and Wales

The advertisement control system in England and Wales consists of rules made by the First Secretary of State and the Welsh Assembly Government, which are part of the planning control systems. The present rules are the Town and Country Planning (Control of Advertisements) Regulations 1992, which have been in force since 6 April 1992. The rules were amended in 1994 and 1999.

If you need a copy of these rules, you can buy one (prices £6.00, £6.00 and £ 1.50) from your nearest Stationery Office bookshop; you should ask for Statutory Instrument 1992 No. 666, SI 1994 No.2351 and SI 1999 No. 1810. There are also official Circulars and Planning Policy Guidance Notes, produced by the Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions and the Welsh Office, which you may find helpful. In England you should ask for DOE Circulars No. 5/92 and 15/94 (price £5.50 and £1.00) and DOE Planning Policy Guidance (PPG) Note No. 19 (price £5.00). In Wales ask for Welsh Office Circulars 14/ 92 and 70/ 94 (price £5.50 and £1.00), Planning Guidance (Wales): Planning Policy First Revision (price £10) and Technical Advice Note (Wales) 7 (price £2.50).

Who controls outdoor advertisements?

Throughout England and Wales, local planning authorities are responsible for the day-to-day operation of the advertisement control system, and for deciding whether a particular advertisement should be permitted or not. For this purpose the local planning authority for your area will normally in England be the district council, in Wales the County Council or the London borough council if you live in the Greater London area. But there are two exceptions to this arrangement:

- if your advertisement is to be displayed in any National Park, the planning authority is the National Park authority, or if it is to be displayed within the Broads area then the planning authority is the Broads authority;
- if your advertisement is to be displayed in an urban development area, the planning authority normally is the Urban Development Corporation for that area.

If the planning authority refuse consent for your advertisement, or require you to remove an existing advertisement, you have a right to appeal against their decision. In England, this appeal is to the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions and in Wales, it is to the Welsh Assembly. The operation of the appeal system is described below.

What is an 'advertisement'?

The advertisement control system covers a very wide range of advertisements and signs including:

- posters and notices
- placards and boards
- fascia signs and projecting signs
- pole signs and canopy signs
- models and devices

- advance signs and directional signs
- estate agents' boards
- captive balloon advertising (not balloons in flight)
- flag advertisements
- price markers and price displays
- traffic signs
- town and village name-signs

Memorials and railway signals are not regarded as advertisements

Three different groups of outdoor advertisement

To enable you to understand more easily whether you need the planning authority's permission for the outdoor advertisement you want to display, this booklet divides all advertisements into three main groups, which are explained in more detail later on. These groups are:

- advertisements which the rules deliberately exclude from the planning authority's control;
- advertisements for which the rules give a 'deemed consent' so that the planning authority's consent is not needed, provided your advertisement is within the rules (see page 10); and
- advertisements for which the planning authority's 'express consent' is always needed.

Three areas where special rules apply

Because there are some places in our cities and towns and many parts of the countryside in England and Wales, which are especially vulnerable to the visual effects of outdoor advertisements, all planning authorities have three special powers which enable them to achieve a stricter control over advertisements than they can achieve in the ordinary way. These powers are:

1. to define an Area of Special Control of Advertisements;
2. to remove from a particular site or a defined area the benefit of the deemed consent normally provided by the rules; and
3. to require a particular advertisement, or the use of a site for displaying advertisements, to be discontinued.

The way in which the planning authority propose to use the first and second of these powers must be formally approved by the Secretary of State or the Welsh Assembly before it is effective; and there is a right of appeal to the Secretary of State or the Welsh Assembly against the planning authority's use of the third power (a 'discontinuance notice').

The 'standard conditions'

All outdoor advertisements must comply with five 'standard conditions'. They must:

- be kept clean and tidy
- be kept in a safe condition

- have the permission of the owner of the site on which they are displayed (this includes the Highway Authority if the sign is to be placed on highway land)
- not obscure, or hinder the interpretation of, official road, rail, waterway or aircraft signs, or otherwise make hazardous the use of these types of transport
- be removed carefully where so required by the planning authority.

Advertisements Which are Normally Permitted

Conditions for display without application

An outdoor advertisement is permitted for display without the planning authority's specific consent if:

- the effect of the rules is to exclude it from control entirely; or
- it comes within the provisions of one of the 14 classes of deemed consent specified in the rules.

If your advertisement is not permitted in either of these ways, you must first obtain the planning authority's consent before you display it.

The description of advertisements which follows may not include all the conditions and limitations which apply to a particular class, and you are advised to consult the Regulations for all these details.

Advertisements which are excluded from control

There are 10 different classes of advertisement which are completely excluded from the planning authority's control provided certain conditions are fulfilled. These categories are:

1. Captive balloon advertisements. One balloon advertisement is exempt from control if it is:
 - not more than 60 above the ground
 - not displayed for more than 10 days in any calendar year; and
 - not in any Area of Special Control of Advertisements, National Park, Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty, Conservation Area or the Broads.

Although captive balloon advertisements displayed at a height of more than 60 metres above ground level are not subject to advertisement control, they are subject to the civil aviation controls over all forms of aerial advertising, and you must obtain the Civil Aviation Authority's consent before you fly any balloon at a height of more than 60 metres.

2. Advertisements displayed on enclosed land. These would include advertisements inside a railway station forecourt, or inside a bus station or sports stadium (see illustrations 1 and 2 below).

Illustration 1

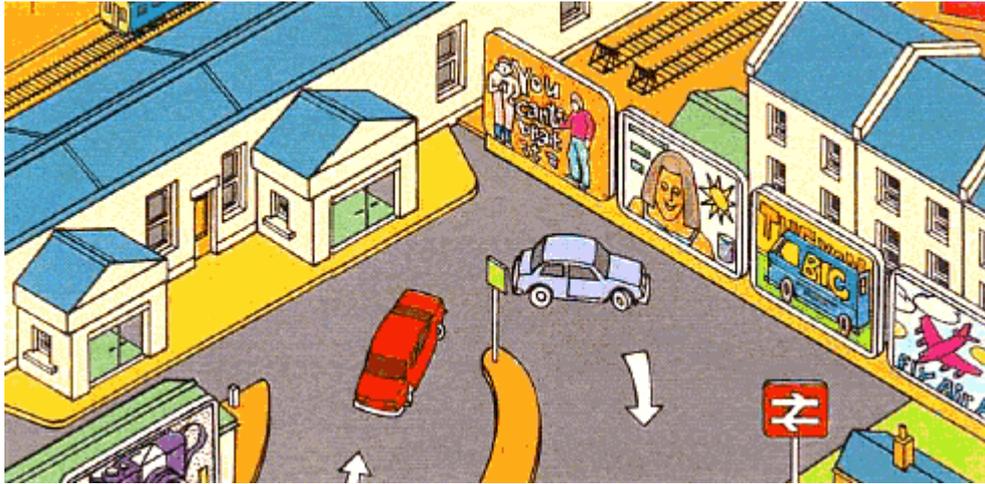

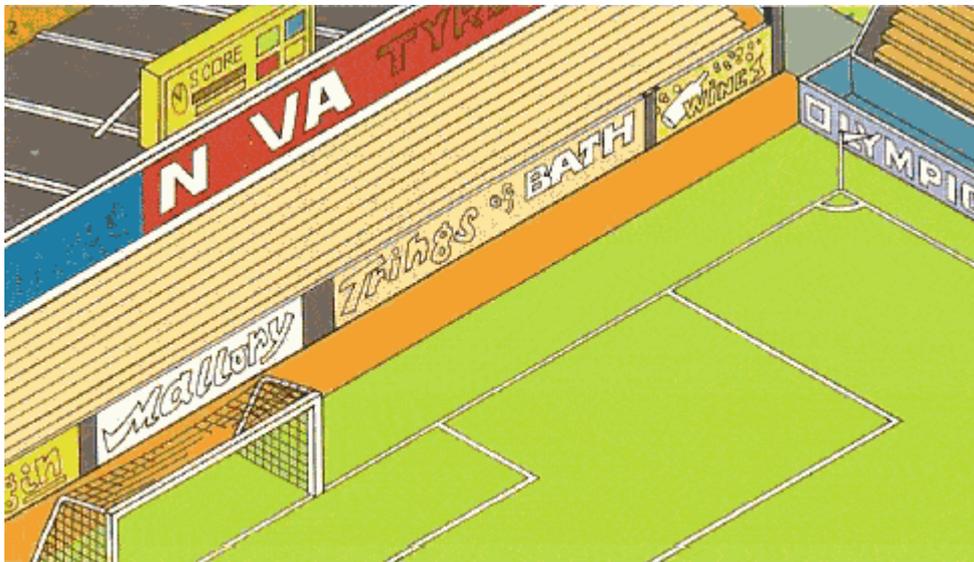

Illustration 2

3. Advertisements displayed on or in any vehicle or vessel which is normally moving (see illustrations 3 and 4).

Illustration 3

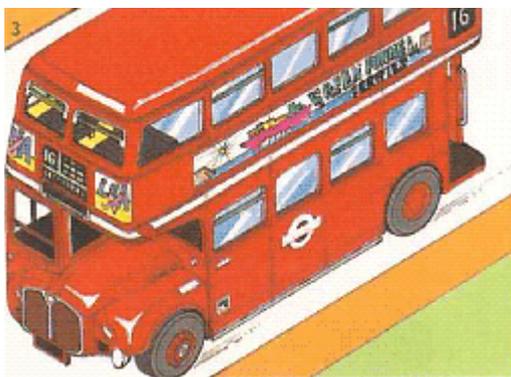

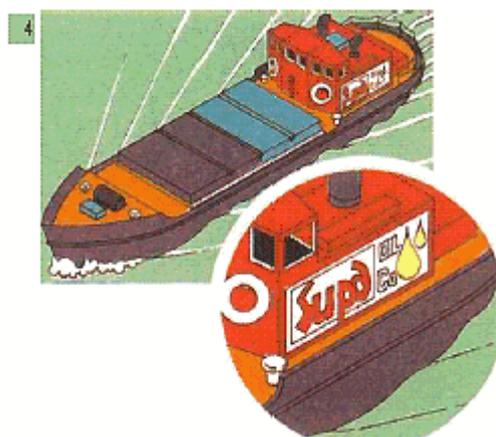

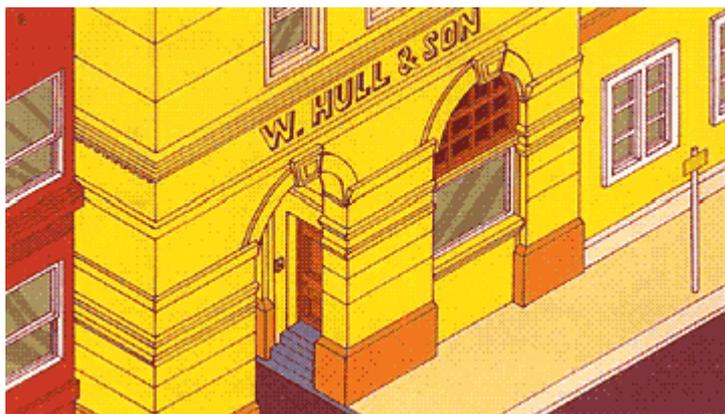

Illustration 4

4. Advertisements which are an integral part of a building's fabric (see illustration 5).

Illustration 5

5. Advertisements in the form of price tickets or markers, trade-names on branded goods, or displayed on petrol pumps or vending machines. These advertisements must not be illuminated, nor exceed 0.1 square metres in area. Examples are shown in illustrations 6 and 7.

Illustration 6

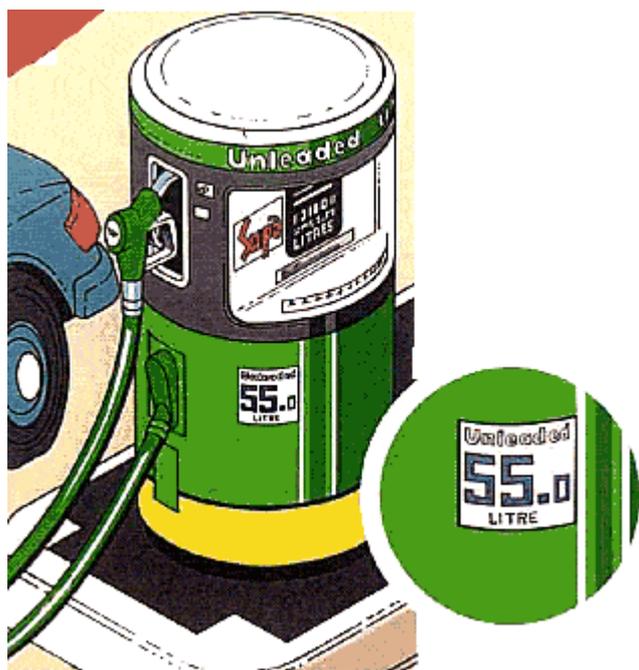

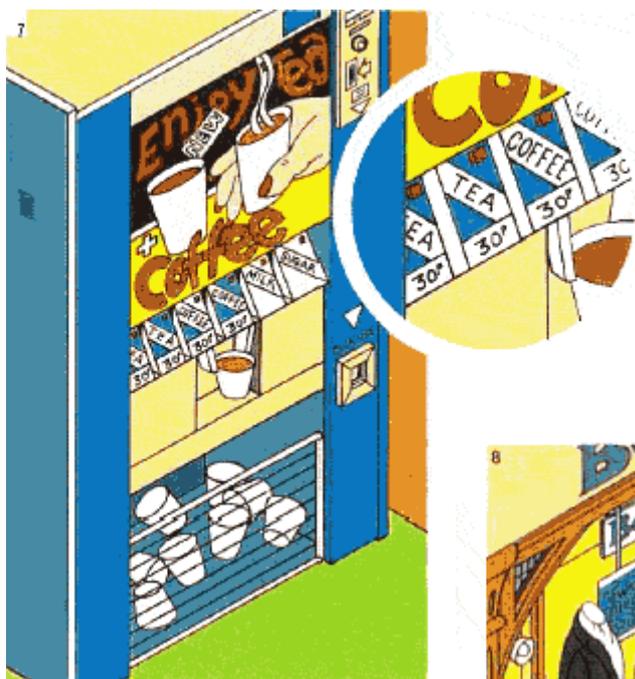

Illustration 7

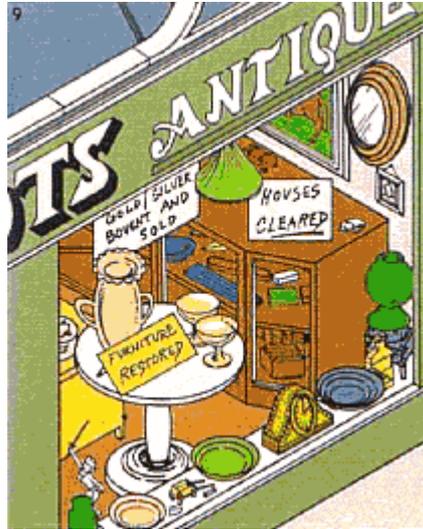

6. Advertisements relating specifically to a pending Parliamentary, European Parliamentary, Welsh Assembly or local government election. These advertisements must not be displayed more than 14 days after the close of the poll.
7. Advertisements required by any Parliamentary Order, or any enactment, to be displayed.
8. Traffic signs. Any traffic sign (as defined in section 64(1) of the Road Traffic Regulation Act 1984).
9. A national flag of any country. Any national flag may be flown on a single vertical flagstaff, so long as it does not have anything added to the design of the flag or any advertising material added to the flagstaff.

10. Advertisements displayed inside a building. These advertisements must not be illuminated, displayed in a building that is not used principally for the display of advertisements or displayed within one metre of any window or other external opening through which they can be seen from outside the building (see illustrations 8 and 9).

Illustration 8

Illustration 9

Classes of advertisement benefiting from deemed consent

The rules enable certain 'specified classes' of advertisement to be displayed without application being made to the planning authority. There are 14 such classes of outdoor advertisement, each with its own particular conditions. So the practical effect is that the number of advertisements in that class, their size and duration of display, are limited for each deemed consent. There are also stricter rules for the display of deemed consent advertisements in any Area of Special Control of Advertisements. Provided that the particular advertisement you propose to display conforms entirely to all the relevant provisions of its own class, you do not need the planning authority's consent to display it. If you are in any doubt whether your advertisement benefits from deemed consent, you would be well advised to consult the planning authority before you display it.

Class 1 : 'functional advertisements' by public bodies

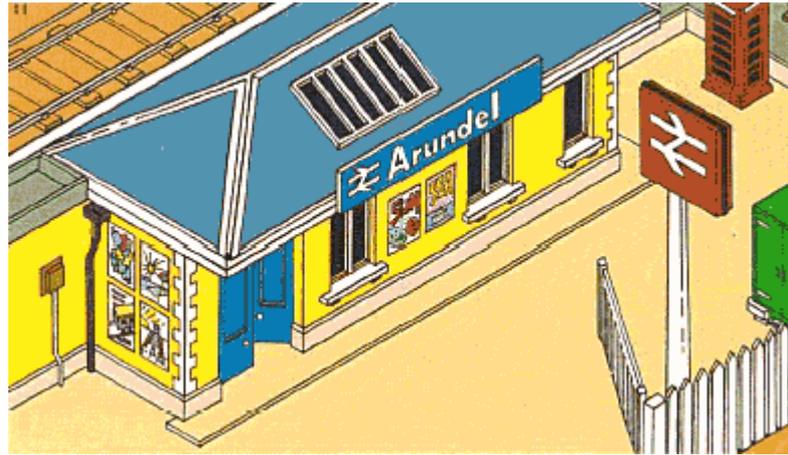

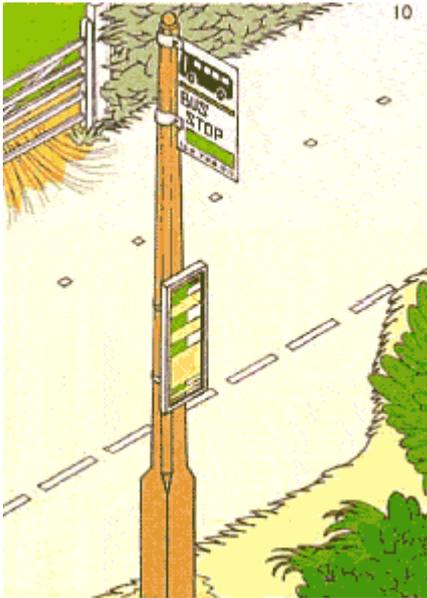

Advertisements in Class 1 are those which are needed by public bodies (such as local authorities, the public utilities and public transport operators) to give information or directions about the services they provide. These would include:

- a notice-board at a municipal swimming pool
- a bus or rail timetable
- a warning notice at an electricity sub-station
- the display of bye-laws for a recreation ground or common land.

Two examples of advertisements in Class 1 are shown in illustrations 10 and 11.

Illustration 10

Illustration 11

There is no size or height limit for this type of advertisement, and a reasonable degree of illumination is allowed to enable the information or directions to be read in hours of darkness.

A local planning authority may display advertisements in their own administrative area.

Class 2: miscellaneous advertisements on any premises

Class 2 gives consent for a wide variety of small notices and signs to be displayed on the premises or buildings to which the notice or sign relates. Class 2 is divided into three separate categories, (A), (B) and (C), each with its own provisions for deemed consent.

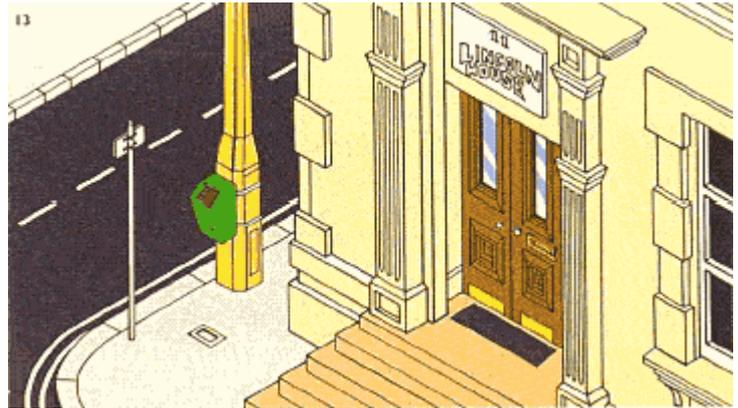

Class 2(A) permits notices or signs to be displayed on buildings or land as a means of identification, direction or warning. These would include:

- the street number or name of a dwelling-house
- a field-gate sign saying 'Please shut the gate'
- a warning notice saying 'Beware of the dog'
- a private sign saying 'No parking please'.

Advertisements in Class 2(A) must not exceed 0.3 of a square metre in area. Two examples of advertisements in this area are shown in illustrations 12 and 13.

Illustration 12

Illustration 13

Class 2(B) permits notices or signs to be displayed on any premises for the purpose of advertising the fact that a person, partnership or company is carrying on a profession, business or trade at those premises. These would include:

- a brass plate outside a doctor's surgery
- a notice-board displaying the names of individuals in a partnership
- the name of a company operating from the premises.

An advertisement in Class 2(B) must not exceed 0.3 of a square metre in area, but if there is more than one entrance to the premises on different road frontages, two advertisements of 0.3 of a square metre each may be displayed (on a separate frontage), as in illustrations 14 and 15.

Illustration 14

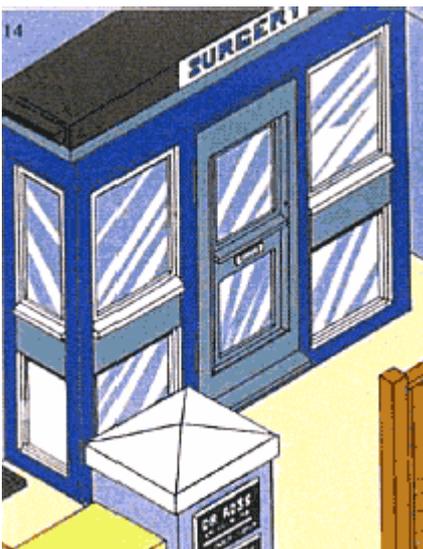

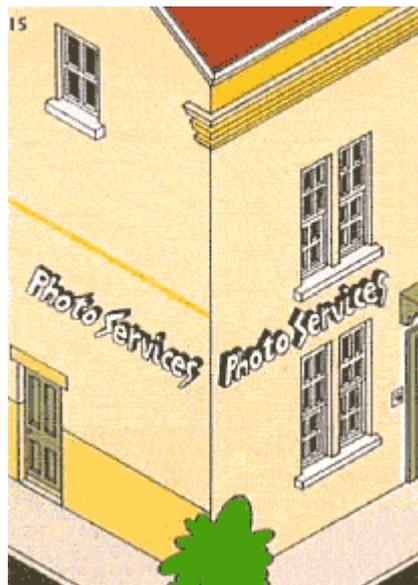

Illustration 15

Class 2(C) permits notices or signs which relate to:

- any religious, educational, cultural, recreational, medical or similar institution; or

- any hotel, inn or public house, block of flats, club, boarding-house or hostel; provided that the advertisement is displayed at the premises and does not exceed 1.2 square metres in area. If there is more than one entrance to the premises on different road frontages, two advertisements of 1.2 square metres each may be displayed (each on a separate frontage). Two examples of advertisements in this class are shown in illustrations 16 and 17.

Illustration 16

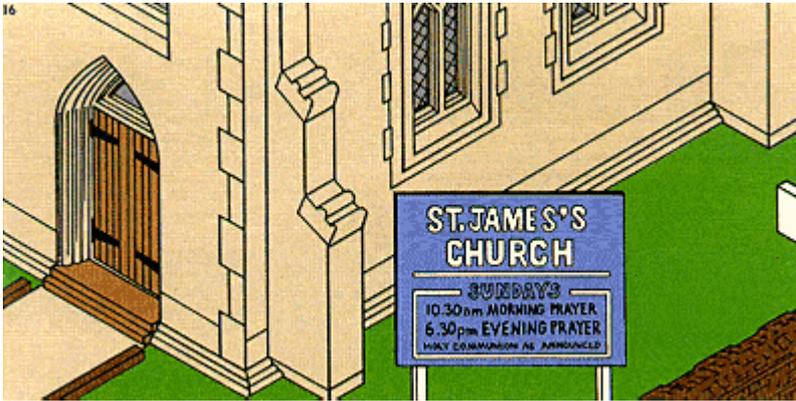

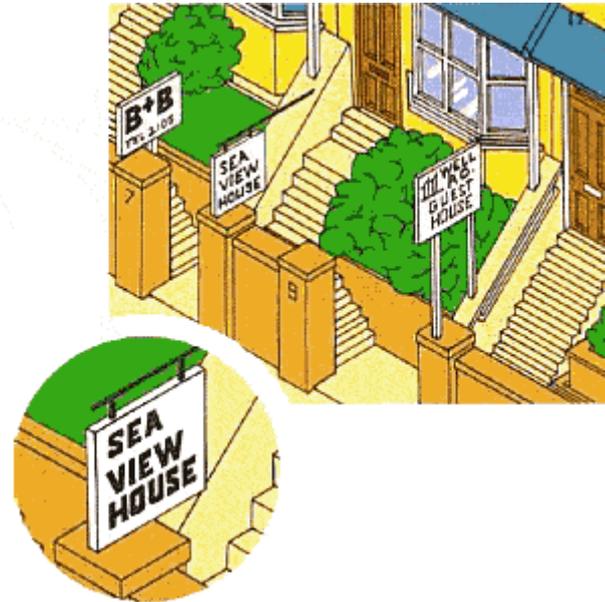

Illustration 17

Any advertisement in Class 2 may be illuminated, with deemed consent, if the illumination is intended to indicate that medical or similar services or supplies are available at the premises. But no letters, figures, symbols or similar features included in the advertisement may be over 0.75 of a metre in height, or 0.3 of a metre in height if the premises are in any Area of Special Control of Advertisements.

Class 3: Temporary Advertisements

Class 3 gives consent for a wide variety of notices and signs which are usually displayed to publicise a forthcoming event, or to advertise a short-term use of the advertisement site. Class 3 is divided into six separate categories - (A), (B), (C), (D), (E) and (F) - each with its own provisions for deemed consent.

Class 3(A) permits boards to be displayed by such firms as estate agents, chartered surveyors, auctioneers and valuers, advertising that land or premises are for sale or to let. The advertisement board for each sale or letting must not exceed, if the sale or letting is for agricultural, industrial or commercial use or development for such use, 2 square metres; but, if two boards are joined together to form a single advertisement, a total surface area of 2.3 square metres is permitted. If the sale or letting is for residential use or development, the advertisement board must not exceed 0.5 of a square metre, or a total area of 0.6 of a square metre for two joined boards. No advertisement board is allowed to extend outwards from the wall of a building by more than 1 metre. In each case only one board may be displayed on premises and this must be removed not later than 14 days after completion of the sale or granting of the tenancy. Two examples are shown in illustrations 18 and 19.

Illustration 18

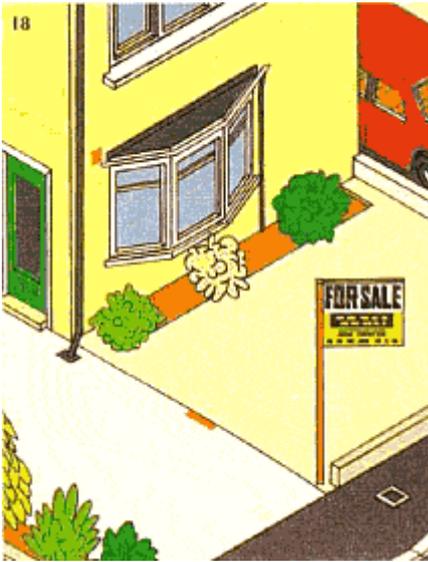

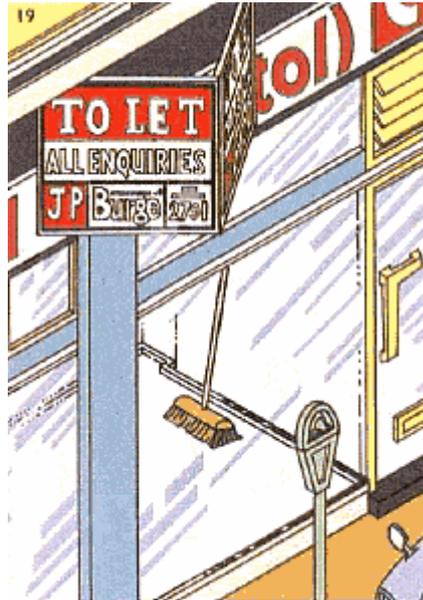

Illustration 19

Class 3(B) permits advertisements to be displayed announcing that there is to be a sale of goods or livestock on land or premises which are not normally used for commercial purposes. These would include:

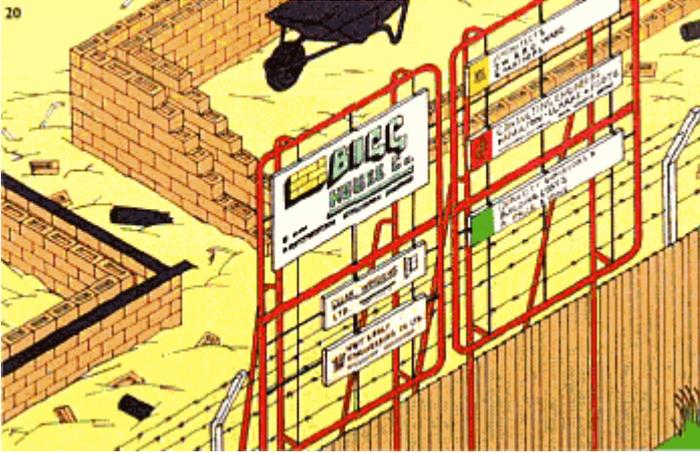

- an auction sale of house-contents at the house
- a sale of livestock on farm premises.

The advertisement board or notice must not exceed 1.2 square metres at the place where the advertised sale is to be held.

Class 3(C) permits firms or individuals who are carrying out building, engineering or construction work to advertise the fact at the site. One firm or individual may display their own advertisement board, provided it does not exceed 2 square metres; but if all those engaged on the contract rely on a single advertisement board, it can have a total area of 2 square metres, plus a further 0.4 of a square metre for each additional firm or person mentioned on the board.

Additionally, if the developer project is known by a particular name, the size of the advertisement board may be increased to enable the name to be displayed. When this type of advertisement board is more than 10 metres away from a highway, it can have a total area of 3 square metres, plus a further 0.6 of a square metre for each additional firm or person mentioned on it. If the board is already being displayed, so that it is impracticable or inconvenient to add another name to it, any other firm, contractor or individual working at the site may display their own separate board for up to three months, provided that it is no larger than 0.5 of a square metre on each road frontage to the site of the project. Class 3(C) permits this type of advertisement board only during the time when the building, engineering or construction works are actually taking place on site. An example of Class 3(C) is shown illustration 20.

Illustration 20

Class 3(D) permits temporary notices or signs which are intended to advertise any local event being held for charitable purposes, which may be religious, educational, cultural, political, social or recreational, but not for any commercial purpose. This permission would include an advertisement for:

- a church bazaar
- a fete for a parent-teacher association
- a sponsored marathon in aid of charity
- an amateur sports event, but not any sporting event organised for commercial purposes.

The advertisement permitted by Class 3(D) must not exceed 0.6 of a square metre.

Class 3(E) permits temporary notices or signs advertising that a demonstration of agricultural methods or processes is taking place on the land where they are being displayed. The total area of all such notices must not exceed 1.2 square metres in aggregate and no individual notice is to exceed 0.4 of a square metre. They may be displayed only for a period of six months in any year.

Class 3(F) permits temporary notices or signs announcing the visit of a travelling circus or fair. These advertisements must not be displayed more than 14 days before the opening of the circus or fair and must be removed within seven days afterwards. The local planning authority must be told 14 days beforehand of the sites of the notice.

Advertisements permitted by Class 3 must not:

- have any letters, figures, symbols or similar features of the design over 0.75 of a metre in height, or 0.3 of a metre in height if they are in any Area of Special Control;
- have the highest part of the advertisement at more than 4.6 metres above ground-level, or 3.6 metres in any Area of Special Control (except for estate agents' boards, in Class 3(A), advertising a sale or letting of premises situated in a building above these specified height limits); or
- be illuminated in any circumstances.

And, if a Class 3 advertisement relates to a sale or event, it must not be displayed more than 28 days before the sale or event begins and must be removed within 14 days after it ends.

Class 4: illuminated advertisements

Class 4 permits the display of advertisements with either internally illuminated letters or characters on an unilluminated background or lit by 'halo' illumination.

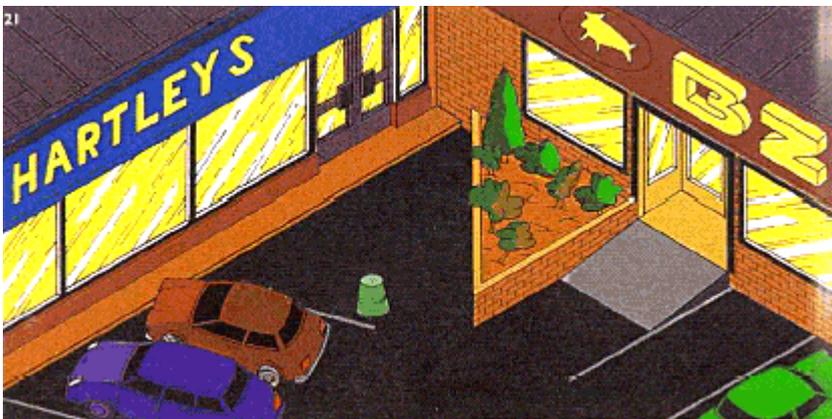

An advertisement permitted by Class 4:

- must not have any intermittent light source, moving feature, animation or exposed cold cathode tubing;
- must not have more than one such fascia panel and one projecting at right angles;
- in the case of a shop, may only be displayed on the wall with a shop window;
- must be at least 2.5 metres high at its lowest point;
- if a fascia panel, must not extend more than 0.25 of a metre from the wall;
- if a projecting sign, must not exceed 0.25 of a metre between the two sides.

Class 4 does not extend to any premises in a Conservation Area, Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty, National Park, the Broads, or Area of Special Control of Advertisements.

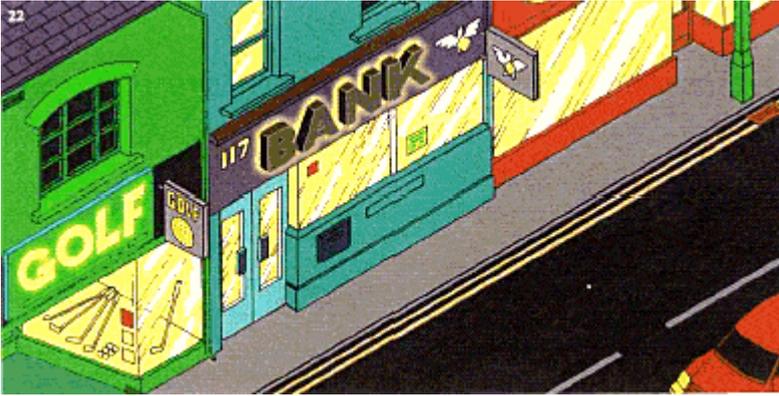

Class 4(A) permits internally or 'halo' illuminated advertisements on premises within a retail park but only on a frontage which faces or overlooks a communal car park. A projecting sign on these premises must not exceed 1 square metre, project more than 1 metre from the wall or be more than 1.5 metres high. An example is shown in illustration 21.

Illustration 21

Class 4(B) permits internally or 'halo' illuminated advertisements on other business premises (see Class 5 below) if they relate wholly to the business or name or qualifications of the person carrying on the business or the goods sold or services provided. A projecting sign must not exceed 0.75 of a square metre in area, project more than 1 metre from the wall, exceed two-thirds the width of any pavement below it, or be more than one-sixth of the frontage measured to the top of the advertisement. An example is shown in illustration 22.

Illustration 22

Maximum levels of luminance are detailed in the Regulations.

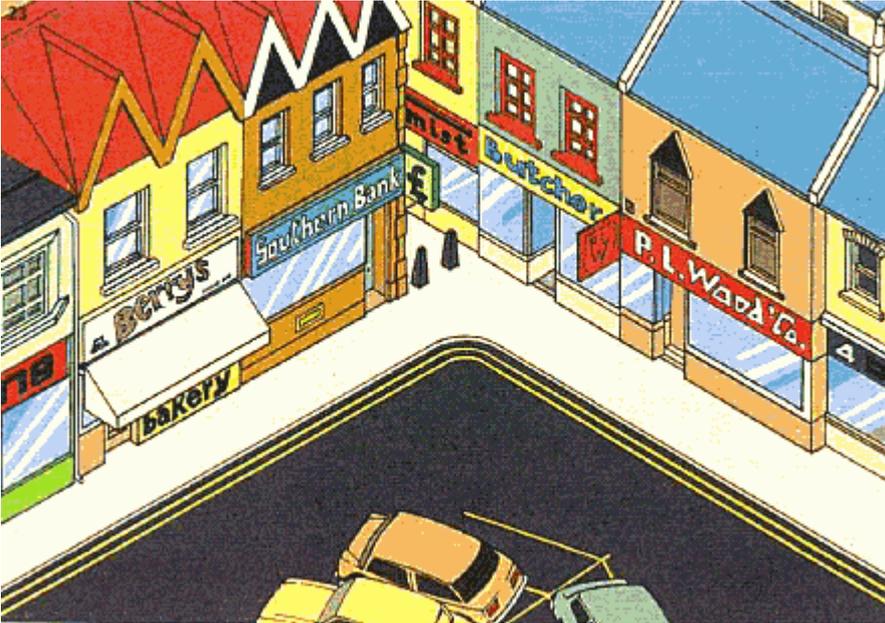

Class 5: advertisements on business premises

Class 5 gives consent for a wide variety of notices, signs and advertisements to draw attention to any commercial services, goods for sale, or any other services available at the premises where the advertisement is being displayed. 'Business premises' means any building in which a professional, commercial or industrial undertaking is being carried on, or any commercial services are being provided for the public. This term would include:

- office buildings
- banks and building societies
- shops and shopping arcades
- supermarkets and hypermarkets
- theatres, cinemas and dance-halls
- bingo halls and amusement arcades
- vehicle showrooms and garages
- privately owned factories and works
- restaurants and cafes.

The advertisement must be displayed on the exterior of the building (see illustration 23).

Illustration 23

Class 5 is not intended to permit all forms of outdoor advertising on any business premises; it only permits advertisements for the goods or services available at the particular premises. This means advertisements which refer to:

- the business or other activity at the premises;
- the goods for sale or the services available; and/or
- the name and qualifications of the firm or person providing the service in the premises.

An advertisement permitted by Class 5 must not:

- have any letters, figures, symbols or similar features in the design over 0.75 of a metre in height, or 0.3 of a metre in height if they are in any Area of Special Control of Advertisements;
- have its highest part at more than 4.6 metres above ground-level, or 3.6 metres in any Area of Special Control of Advertisements;
- have its highest part above the level of the bottom of the first-floor window in the wall where the advertisement is;
- be illuminated, unless the illumination is intended to indicate that medical or similar services or supplies are available at the premises; and
- if the premises are in any Area of Special Control of Advertisements, exceed in area 10 per cent of the external face of the building, measured up to a height of 3.6 metres above ground-level.

Additionally, if the business premises is a shop, an advertisement may be displayed only on an external wall which has a shop window in it.

Class 6: advertisements on forecourts of business premises

When business premises have a forecourt (or more than one), Class 6 gives a further consent to display the type of advertisement permitted by Class 5, namely notices, signs and advertisements to draw attention to any commercial services, goods for sale, or other services available at the premises. The term 'forecourt' includes any enclosing fence, wall, screen or other structure, so long as the means of enclosure is not part of the business premises itself. So a forecourt would include:

- the enclosed area in front of a newsagent's or tobacconist's shop;
- the area at a petrol filling station where pumps are situated;
- a terrace in front of a restaurant or cafe.

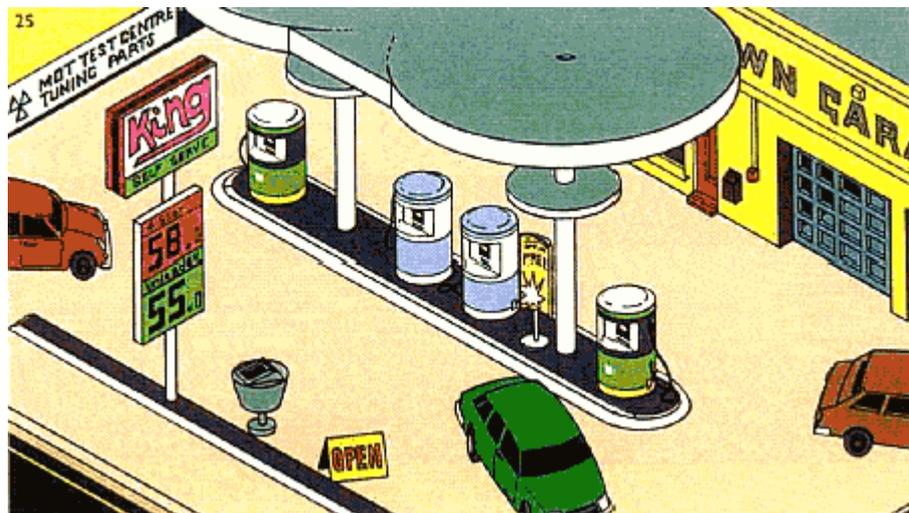

A forecourt does not include the area of pavement in front of business premises which forms part of the highway.

Because Class 6 permits advertisements on the forecourt of business premises, any such notices, signs or advertisements must be at ground-level. And the total permitted area for all forecourt advertisements must not exceed 4.5 square metres on each forecourt frontage to the premises. So a building with two forecourt frontages may have advertisements not exceeding 9 square metres in all, provided that those on each frontage do not exceed 4.5 square metres. Forecourt advertisements must not be illuminated in any circumstances. Two examples are shown in illustrations 24 and 25.

Illustration 24

Illustration 25

Class 7: flag advertisements

Class 7 permits some flag advertisements. (This deemed consent has no effect upon any display of the national flag of any country - see class 9 on page 9). Class 7(A) permits an advertisement to be displayed as a flag, on one flagstaff, fixed upright on the roof of a building. There is no height limit for this consent, but the flag itself may only have on it the name, emblem, device or trademark of the company or person occupying the building, or refer to a specific event of a limited duration taking place in the building. So flags are not permitted to advertise products, unless they have the planning authority's specific consent.

Class 7(B) permits the display of advertising flags at housebuilding sites and where new houses remain available for sale, except in a National Park, Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty, Conservation Area, the Broads or Area of Special Control of Advertisements. The rules for class 7(B) are:

- each flag must be on a single vertical flagstaff,
- a site where 10 houses or less are built may have one flag, 11 to 100 houses may have two flags, and over 100 houses may have three flags;
- the flagstaffs must not exceed 4.6 metres high;
- the flags must not exceed 2 square metres in area;
- the flags and flagstaffs must be removed at the end of one year after construction of the last house is completed.

There are special arrangements for sites being developed in phases or by more than one housebuilder. An example is shown in illustration 26.

Illustration 26

Class 8: poster-hoardings around temporary construction sites

Class 8 permits the display, for three years only, of poster-hoardings which are being used to screen building or construction sites while the work is being carried out on site. The purpose of this consent is to bring about some environmental benefit on building sites, by enabling screening (and perhaps also temporary landscaping) of the site to take place, thus providing the advertisers with some financial incentive for this purpose. But the benefit of Class 8 is not available in any National Park, Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty, Conservation Area, the Broads, or Area of Special Control of Advertisements. Outside those designated and defined areas, this consent is limited to land being developed for commercial, industrial or business use, and is not available for any residential development.

Advertisements permitted by Class 8 must not:

- be displayed more than three months before the date on which the building or construction works actually start;
- be less than 1.5 metres high and 1 metre long or more than 3.1 metres high and 12.1 metres long; and
- be displayed for more than three years.

Additionally, the advertiser must send written notification to the planning authority of his intention to display such an advertisement at least 14 days before the display starts, and provide a copy of the detailed planning permission for the site.

These advertisements may be illuminated in a manner reasonably required to fulfil the purpose of the advertisement. An example is shown in illustration 27.

Illustration 27

Class 9: four-sheet posterpanels displayed on purpose-designed highway structures

Class 9 enables the smallest standard size of poster-panel (known as four-sheet) to be displayed on structures or objects placed on highway land with the local council's approval, under the Highways Act 1980 (section 115E). The rules for class 9 are:

- the structure, such as a bus shelter or information kiosk, must be purpose-designed for displaying this size of poster-panel;
- the poster-panel must not exceed 2.16 square metres in area; and
- no illumination is permitted. An example is shown in illustration 28.

Illustration 28

Class 10: properly authorised signs for approved Neighbourhood Watch and similar schemes

Class 10 enables outdoor signs for Neighbourhood Watch and other Watch schemes, jointly established by a local Watch committee and the police authority, to be displayed on, or near, highway land, saying that a Watch scheme is in operation in the area. This is also intended to include Home Watch, Crime Watch, Farm Watch and Industrial Watch schemes set up jointly with the police authority. The rules for Class 10 are:

- signs must not exceed 0.2 of a square metre (about 18 inches x 18 inches) in area;
- no sign may exceed 3.6 metres (12 feet) above ground level;
- for signs on highway land, the highway authority's permission must first be obtained;

14 days before any sign is put up, the local planning authority must be told where it is to be displayed and assured that it is properly authorised by the police and (if necessary) the highway authority; and if the police or highway authority withdraw their approval, or the Watch scheme ceases to operate, the signs must be removed within 14 days.

Class 11: directional advertisements

Class 11 permits housebuilding firms to put up temporary directional signs, telling potential housebuyers and other visitors how to reach a site where new residential development is taking place. The rules for Class 11 are:

- signs must not exceed 0.15 of a square metre (about 15 inches x 15 inches) in area;
- no sign may exceed 4.6 metres (15 feet) above ground-level, or 3.6 metres (12 feet) in an Area of Special Control of Advertisements;
- any lettering or other information on the sign must not be less than 40 millimetres or more than 250 millimetres high;
- reflective material and illumination must not be used;
- the sign must not look like an official traffic sign;
- the sign must be near to, but not on, highway land and not within 50 metres of an official traffic sign facing in the same direction;

- no sign may be more than two miles from the main entrance to the housebuilding site;

14 days before any sign is put up, the local planning authority must be told where it is to be displayed and from what date; and no sign may continue to be displayed after development of the housebuilding site is completed; or for more than two years.

An example is shown in illustration 29.

Illustration 29

Class 12: advertisements displayed inside buildings

Class 12 permits advertisements to be displayed inside a building if;

- they are illuminated (for example, a sign in the window of a chemist's shop);
- the building is mainly used to display advertisements; or
- the advertisement is within one metre of any window or other external opening through which it can be seen from outside the building.

Class 13: sites used for displaying advertisements on 1 April 1974

Class 13 does not permit any substantial increase in the extent, or alteration in the manner, of the use of the site on 1 April 1974.

Class 14: advertisements displayed after the expiry of express consent

Class 14 permits the continued display of advertisements for which the permitted period of express consent (usually five years) has expired and for which the planning authority has not forbidden any further display of that advertisement, or refused an application for its renewed display.

Advertisements Which Need Specific Permission, and How to Obtain it

Express consent

If an advertisement you want to display is not excluded from control, and does not benefit from any of the provisions for deemed consent, you need the planning authority's express consent before you can display it. Some frequently displayed types of advertisement for which you need the planning authority's consent are:

- virtually all posters
- some illuminated signs
- fascia signs and projecting signs on shop-fronts or business premises where the top edge of the sign is more than 4.6 metres above ground level
- most advertisements on gable-ends.

How to obtain advertisement consent

To obtain consent to put up an advertisement or sign you will need to apply to the planning authority for the area where it will be displayed. Most planning authorities provide a standard application form, which you can obtain from the local Council's Planning Department. In addition to the completed application form, illustrative plans and drawings are required; and you will have to pay the appropriate charge for the advertisement application. The tariff of charges is related to the type of advertisement involved in the application, and the amounts are reviewed annually. Information about current charges is given on the application form, or can be obtained from the Planning Department's area office.

How your application for consent is decided

Your application for consent to display an advertisement will usually be decided by the Planning Committee of the district council (England), the County Council (Wales) or London borough council, for the site where the advertisement is to be displayed. Alternatively, the Planning Committee may have delegated this responsibility to an officer of the Council's Planning Department. In deciding whether to approve your application, the planning authority may consider only two issues; these are described in the rules as the interests of amenity and public safety. Many planning authorities have formulated and adopted advertisement control policy statements, indicating what detailed considerations they regard as relevant to their decisions on advertisement application. The statements often indicate the circumstances in which advertisements are likely to be permitted or refused. But while a relevant policy statement will be a material factor in deciding your advertisement application, it should not be the only decisive factor because the planning authority must always have regard to the circumstances of each individual advertisement application.

What do 'amenity' and 'public safety' mean?

The terms 'amenity' and 'public safety' are not defined in detail in the advertisement control rules, although advice on these terms is given in DOE Circular 5/92 (WO 14/92) and PPG 19 (TAN(W) 7 in Wales). Each planning authority (and the Secretary of State or Welsh Assembly on appeal) must interpret what is meant by these expressions as they apply in particular cases. In practice, 'amenity' is usually understood to mean the effect upon visual amenity in the immediate neighbourhood of displaying the advertisement, or using an advertisement site, where passers-by, or people living there, will be aware of the advertisement. So in assessing amenity, the planning authority will always consider the local characteristics of the neighbourhood. For example, if your advertisement will be displayed in a locality where there are important scenic, historic, architectural or cultural features, the planning authority will consider whether it is in scale and in keeping with these features. This might mean that the planning authority would refuse consent for a large poster-boarding which would visually dominate a group of 'listed' buildings. But where there are large buildings and main highways, for example in an industrial or commercial area of a major city, the planning authority may grant consent for large advertisements which would not adversely affect visual amenity in the neighbourhood of the site. Two examples are shown in illustrations 30 and 31.

Illustration 30

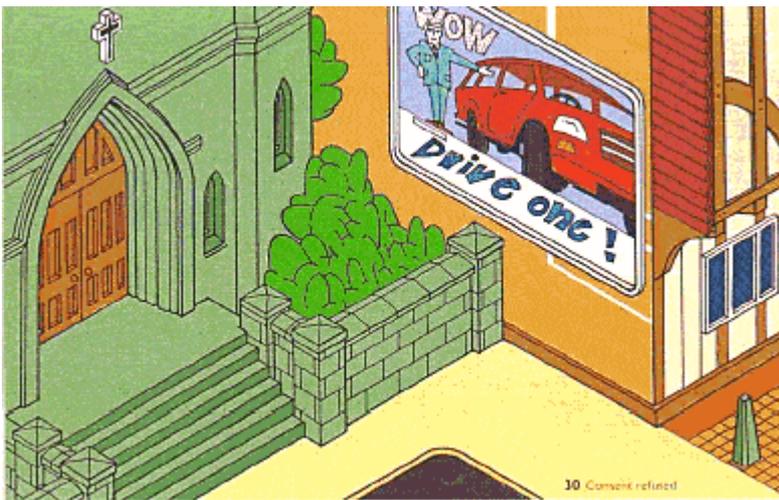

Illustration 31

If you are in doubt whether an advertisement needing specific consent will be acceptable on grounds of amenity, staff in the local authority's Planning Department will usually advise you informally before you submit an application formally to them. Among amenity considerations the authority must not include the content or subject-matter of an advertisement, nor whether an advertisement would offend public decency, or moral values. These factors are controlled by a voluntary 'code of conduct' supervised by the Advertising Standards Authority.

'Public safety' means the considerations which are relevant to the safe use and operation of any form of traffic or transport on land (including the safety of pedestrians), over water or in the air. So, for this purpose, the planning authority must assess the likely effects of your advertisement in relation to such matters as the behaviour of driver, possible confusion with any traffic sign or signal, or possible interference with a navigational light or aerial beacon. But the planning authority will assume that all advertisements are intended to attract people's attention, so that the advertisement you want to display would not automatically be regarded as a distraction to passers-by in vehicles or on foot. What matters is whether your advertisement, or the spot where you propose to site it, will be so distracting or so confusing that it creates a hazard for, or endangers, people who are taking reasonable care for their own and others' safety. When they are considering 'public safety' factors for your advertisement, the planning authority will normally consult other relevant bodies, for example the highway authority if your advertisement is alongside a major road.

What happens after the authority's decision?

If the planning authority have granted consent for the display of your advertisement, the consent usually lasts for five years. But the authority may grant consent for a longer or shorter period than five years; so it is worth checking, in the notification of their decision, for how long the consent will last. However, unless the planning authority have imposed a condition that your advertisement must be removed after their consent expires, you may continue to display it without making any further application, although the authority may still take 'discontinuance action' against it.

What happens if the planning authority refuse consent?

If the planning authority refuse consent for your advertisement, or they impose a condition on their consent with which you are dissatisfied (for example, the hours for illuminating a shop fascia sign are very strictly limited), you have a right to appeal against the authority's decision to the Secretary of State or Welsh Assembly (as explained in the following paragraph). You also have a right to appeal to the Secretary of State or Welsh Assembly if the planning authority fail to give their decision within eight weeks of the date of your advertisement application, or within any period longer than eight weeks which you and the planning authority may have agreed. But you have no right to appeal if the planning authority tell you that they have treated your application as withdrawn because it is similar, in all relevant respects, to one on the same site which has been refused by the Secretary of State or Welsh Assembly on appeal within the preceding two years.

How and when you can appeal to the Secretary of State

If you wish to appeal against the planning authority's decision for an advertisement site in England, your appeal must be made to the Secretary of State for the Environment, Transport and the Regions; and, if the site is in Wales, to the Welsh Assembly for Wales. The best way to appeal is to complete the official advertisement appeal form which is available from the Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions or Welsh Assembly at these addresses:

Office of the Deputy Prime Minister

Customer Support Unit
Room 315, Temple Quay House
2 The Square
Temple Quay
Bristol BS1 6PN
Tel: 0117 372 6372

Planning Inspectorate

Cathays Park
Cardiff
CF 10 3NQ
Tel: 029 2082 3866

Your appeal must normally be made within eight weeks of the date when you receive notification of the planning authority's decision; but the Secretary of State (or Welsh Assembly) has discretion to allow a later appeal if he considers that the circumstances justify it. The appeal procedure is fully explained on the appeal form, and the Department for Transport, Local Government and the Regions or the Welsh Assembly (at the addresses above) will usually be able to provide any additional advice you need. The Secretary of State or Welsh Assembly's decision on an appeal is usually the final determination, on 'amenity', and 'public safety', for your advertisement application, although there is a further right to appeal to the High Court, on a point of law or if there has been a breach of natural justice.

Illegal advertisements

Anyone who displays an advertisement, or uses an advertisement site, or knowingly permits someone else to do so, without the consent required for it is acting illegally. It is then immediately open to the planning authority to bring a prosecution in the Magistrates' Court for an offence under section 224 of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990. But, unless an offence is especially flagrant or repeated, the planning authority may not initially consider it necessary to prosecute for an advertisement offence. Instead, they may invite the advertiser to apply for the consent they believe he needs, and, if consent is refused, there will be a right of appeal to the Secretary of State or Welsh Assembly.

The continued display of any advertisement after consent has been refused, and any appeal dismissed, may well result in prosecution. The maximum fine on conviction of an offence is presently £1,000, with an additional daily fine of one-tenth of the maximum penalty on conviction of a continuing offence.

It is illegal to display any advertisement (even if it has deemed consent) without first obtaining the permission of the owner of the site, or any other person who is entitled to grant permission.

Any form of fly-posting (that is, displaying an advertisement without consent) is an offence which is immediately open to prosecution, or to the removal or obliteration of any fly-posting material if the district council in England, County Council in Wales or London borough council decide to take remedial action against fly-posting in their area. In the case of a placard or poster, if the material identifies the advertiser displaying it, the Council must give two days' written notice of the intention to remove or obliterate it. This advance notice gives the advertiser the opportunity to contest the Council's proposed actions, but if the advertiser is not identified a placard or poster may be immediately removed or obliterated.

Appendix: Special Controls

Power to take away the benefit of deemed consent

The rules enable the planning authority to invite the Secretary of State or the Welsh Assembly to order that, in any particular area, or on any particular site, an advertisement which would normally benefit from deemed consent is not to be displayed without the planning authority's specific consent. Before making any such order, the Secretary of State (or the Assembly) must ensure that the planning authority's representations to him are publicised, so that local people and interested organisations may have an opportunity to make whatever representations they wish about the merits of the proposed withdrawal of deemed consent. He must take account of any objections to the order; and, if he does decide to make it he must give his reasons in writing for doing so.

Because the withdrawal of a deemed consent may adversely affect people's livelihoods, it will be confined to those few circumstances where it is clear to the Secretary of State or the Welsh Assembly that one or more of the deemed consent provisions have had such adverse effects on the environment that there is no prospect of an improvement in the quality of advertising in the locality unless the planning authority are enabled to control that particular type of advertising. Once such an order has been made by the Secretary of State or the Welsh Assembly, the class of deemed consent to which the order relates is no longer available to advertisers after a specified date.

Power to take 'discontinuance action'

The rules enable the planning authority to take discontinuance action against any advertisement, or the use of any advertisement site, which normally has the benefit of any of the categories of deemed consent. Action to serve a 'discontinuance notice' may be taken only if the planning authority are satisfied it is necessary to do so to remedy a substantial injury to the amenity of the locality or a danger to members of the public.

When the planning authority decide to take discontinuance action they must ensure that a copy of their discontinuance notice reaches the advertiser and the owner and occupier of the site on which the advertisement in question is displayed. The discontinuance notice must state:

- the advertisement or advertisement site whose display or use is to stop;
- the period within which the display or use must stop;
- the reasons why the planning authority consider that the display or use should stop; and
- the effective date of the notice (not less than eight weeks after it is served).

Anyone who receives a discontinuance notice has a right of appeal against it to the Secretary of State or the Welsh Assembly before the specified date on which it is to take effect. The Secretary of State or the Welsh Assembly then considers the appeal on its own merits in the usual way. If the appeal succeeds, the discontinuance notice does not take effect; if the appeal fails, the display of advertisements, or the use of the advertisement site, must stop on the date specified in the decision on the appeal.

What is an Area of Special Control of Advertisements?

An Area of Special Control of Advertisements is an area specifically defined by the planning authority because they consider that its scenic, historical, architectural or cultural features are so significant that a stricter degree of advertisement control is justified in order to conserve visual amenity within that area. Legislation requires that Areas of Special Control are to be:

- rural areas; or
- other areas which appear to the Secretary of State or the Welsh Assembly to require 'special protection on grounds of amenity'.

Before any Area of Special Control defined by a local planning authority can be effective, the Secretary of State or the Welsh Assembly must approve it. This approval procedure ensures that nationally applicable standards are used in determining what areas are to have stricter advertisement control.

In practice, Areas of Special Control vary considerably in their extent. For example, large areas of the Lake District and the Peak District and of the counties of North Yorkshire, Norfolk, Devon and Cornwall are Areas of Special Control, as are, at the other extreme, the cathedral precinct in York and small areas in the city of Leeds. The boundary of any Area of Special Control must always be defined precisely, by reference to an Ordnance Survey base-map, so that it is possible to ascertain whether particular premises are within special control or not. For this reason, it may be worth checking exactly where the boundary is because there may be small enclaves (such as a moderately sized town) where the stricter provisions do not apply.

In any Area of Special Control of Advertisements three main categories of outdoor advertising are permitted. They are:

- public notices
- advertisements inside a building
- • advertisements for which there is deemed consent.
- Additionally, the planning authority may give their specific consent in an Area of Special Control for:
 - notices about local events or activities;
 - advance signs or directional signs which are 'reasonably required' in order to direct people to the place identified the sign;
 - an advertisement required for public safety reasons; and
 - an advertisement in any of the deemed consent classes if it is considered reasonable for the normal limits on that class to be exceeded.

The main consequence for advertisements which can be displayed with deemed consent in an Area of Special Control is that there are stricter limits on permitted height and size of the advertisement than elsewhere. These limits are explained in relation to each class of deemed consent.